ASIA POLICY DEFENDED BY GEN. BRADLEY

Five-Star Peer of Deposed
Commander Defends
Program Pursued by Defense Department

DISAGREES WITH "MAC"

Chicago, April 17—(P)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, five-star peer of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, today declared Asia military policies advocated by the deposed commander would "jeopardize world peace."

Bradley was the first of the homecoming general's five-star brothers in rank to speak out publicly against the theory of carrying the war to China since President Truman dismissed MacArthur last week. Bradley did not mention MacArthur's name.

Last year's quick United Nations action in Korea, Bradley declared, may have stayed the Kremlin's hand as it was about to precipitate World War Three.

Bradley roundly backed the president's stand against MacArthur's ideas and defended the administration's policy of limiting the war in Korea. As chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Bradley has a large part in policy making.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Bradley also declared:

1. The Korean war, under present conditions, may be headed toward a stalemate, but it can be brought to an honorable conclusion.

2. The United States will not wage a preventive war.

3. The one price the U. S. will not pay for peace is appeasement.

4. The use of the Reds have made of air bases in Manchuria to date has not warranted U. N. bombing of them.

5. Action against aggression in Korea upset Communist plans in Asia at least temporarily preventing Red moves in Indochina and perhaps accompanied by a threat to bomb Russia—is militarily impracticable and might backfire.

In Washington, the Defense Department said Bradley's speech was cleared by the State Department in line with a White House edict last December requiring clearance of policy statements by government officials. In ousting MacArthur from the Far East command, Mr. Truman cited disre-

Fourth of July Celebration Committee Discusses Varied Activities for Event

At a well attended meeting of the Jaycee Fourth of July Celebration committee last night at the American Legion Home, fine progress was reported on several of the activities planned for the four day event.

Some lucky young lady in Warren County will be selected as Queen of the Celebration and will reign over the festivities with her court. Joe Bunk, chairman, announces that already two prizes have been offered for the Queen. The Waxman Furniture Store will present the lucky lady with a Lane Cedar Chest and the Kofod Studio will make a portrait for the Queen. It is expected that other merchants will want to present her majesty with gifts also.

Other members of the Queen committee include Vance Ross, Robert Buyer, Fred Thompson, Dick Munch and Louis Fredericks. Tentative plans call for the selection of Queen and court to be held in downtown Warren about a week prior to the celebration followed by a street dance.

The Kids' Roaster Klasic committee reported favorable progress also. It announced that the grand prize, a fully equipped bicycle, has already been donated by the Western Auto Store. A radio and camera are the second and third awards. The committee emphasized last night that wheels used in the construction of the racers do not necessarily have to be official wheels, but they must be ac-

Senate Agriculture Committee Kills Bills Permitting Sale of Colored Oleo

Harrisburg, April 17—(P)—The senate agriculture committee today apparently killed four bills permitting sale of colored oleomargarine in Pennsylvania.

Sen. George B. Scarlett (R-Chester) chairman of the committee said the members voted by "a great majority" not to report out any of the bills. A bill must be approved by a committee before it is reported to either house for a vote.

Asked if any new attempts would be made to revive the bills, Scarlett said: "I don't think so."

However, similar legislation for sale of olea in colored form are also pending in the house agriculture committee.

Scarlett said the members voted against the bills because "they think the measures were too wide open. They provided no protection to the consumer and set up unfair competition."

Scarlett added two amendments that he offered were rejected by the committee.

MACARTHUR'S LONG VOYAGE HOME BEGINS—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's five-starred sedan rolls through the gates of the U. S. Embassy residence in Tokyo, carrying the general on the first leg of his journey back to America after being relieved of his command by President Truman. With him were his wife and son as they headed for Haneda Airport for the flight across the Pacific, MacArthur's first trip back to the United States in 14 years.

Legislature Ducks Federal Court Order In Tangle Over Reapportionment Issue

Harrisburg, April 17—(P)—The legislature invoked the state constitution today to sidestep a federal court summons issued on charges that it has failed to live up to that constitution.

The situation is described by veteran lawmakers as virtually unprecedented in Pennsylvania history.

Here's how it happened:

Two Philadelphia process-servers showed up in the capitol yesterday carrying a brief case bulging with summonses for each one of the 50 senators and 207 assemblymen.

The summonses were intended to notify the lawmakers that they were defendants in a federal court suit brought by the Northeast Philadelphia chamber of commerce.

The organization is protesting the failure of the legislature to reapportion senate and house seats since 1921. It asked the U. S. District court at Philadelphia to hold members of the legislature in contempt if they don't do something about it during the current session.

The two process-servers, Bruce R. Wright and Thomas C. Willis, gave summonses to Sen. John M. Walker, Republican floor leader, and Sen. John H. Dent, Democratic floor leader.

Walker didn't accept it. The process-servers, who are also attorneys for the Northeast Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, threw it at his feet in Walker's office.

A few minutes later, Wright and Willis showed up in the senate chamber. Then came the fireworks.

After the outburst of oratory in both houses, the process-servers withdrew. Wright said the summonses will be served on the legislators at their homes.

The state constitution says the legislature must apportion assembly districts after each 10-year census but there is no penalty provision if it doesn't.

The Northeast Chamber of Commerce is asking the federal court to order the legislature to do the job this year under penalty of contempt of court and loss of the lawmakers' salaries until the task is completed.

DECISION SOON IN MARGIOTTI ACTION

Pittsburgh, April 17—(P)—Three Allegheny County judges will decide soon if they will allow a libel suit to proceed against former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti.

Mrs. Marjorie Hanson Matson, an Allegheny county assistant district attorney, filed the suit against Margiotti. She contends Margiotti libelled her when he said she had "leftist associations."

Margiotti, contended his actions as attorney general were privileged. He claims he can't be sued.

REDS MASS IN HILLS NORTH OF HUGE DAM

Tokyo, April 17—(P)—Allied troops ripped into Communist forces on Korea's east central front today in the swelling battle for the huge Hwachon dam.

The Reds' man-made smoke screen began to lift late Tuesday afternoon. United Nations warplanes roared into action with jelled gasoline bombs, rockets and machineguns.

On the ground Allied infantrymen battered the Reds with artillery and rifle fire.

Thousands of combat-ready Communist soldiers were massed in the hills north of the dam. The Allied attack was aimed to keep them off-balance and block their long-expected spring offensive.

Rigid news censorship regulations issued by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, new Allied supreme commander, banned all references to the exact size and location of Chinese and Red Korean forces.

On the western front United Nations troops maintained their pressure south of Chorwon. The town, 17 miles north of the border, was destroyed by artillery and air attacks earlier this month. It is still an important Chinese base and road junction.

Yonchon, on the road leading northwest to Chorwon, was abandoned by the Reds. The Allies held high ground on all sides of Yonchon, but had not entered the town itself.

An Allied tank-infantry force smashed into a Red pocket of resistance on the main road to Kumhwa, a Chinese bastion on the central front. Fifty of the 250 Reds were killed by tank and rifle fire.

Kumhwa is east-northeast of Chorwon and a key point in the rebuilding area.

The exact location of the fight was not reported.

Activity on the east and west coasts was limited to patrol actions.

Dive-bombing U. S. F-80 Shooting Star jets struck Communist rail facilities Tuesday for the third straight day.

The Reds lighted forest fires and smudge pots in an effort to hide their ground movements from the prying eyes of Allied pilots.

MARTIN CRITICISES TRUMAN'S GESTURE

Boston, April 17—(P)—U. S. Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., house minority leader, says if this country is not in Korea to win, "then somebody should be indicted for the murder of thousands of American boys."

Informed last night that President Truman would send his military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, as his representative to meet MacArthur when the latter arrives at National Airport in Washington, Martin said:

"Certainly sending Vaughan to meet MacArthur is not a conciliatory gesture on the part of the president."

He chuckled and added: "You know, MacArthur will walk up to him. Vaughan will salute, and MacArthur will go right past him."

SCHOOL HAS FIRE

Pittsburgh, April 17—(P)—School will resume today for more than 30 students at the Hamilton Elementary school in nearby Bradock despite a $25,000 fire. The blaze broke out yesterday shortly after the pupils left for lunch.

Three pupils and 14 teachers escaped unhurt. The pupils will be sent to other schools.

Youngville Library Association Board To Discuss Bequest Made in Russell Will

Members of the Youngville Library Association board are meeting this evening at the home of Mrs. Roy McDowell, president, to take immediate steps toward incorporation of the association in order to benefit by the terms of the will of Mrs. Nora S. Russell, probated yesterday.

Other members of the board will include Edolph Johnson, Carl E. Hillard is the present librarian.

The will provides a bequest estimated at between $30,000 and $35,000, half of which may be used for the purchase of a building and equipment, and the other half to go into an endowment fund, the income of which is for the purchase of books and payment of expenses.

Later, when the use became too great, the library was moved across the street to the old First National Bank building. Still later, when the banking rooms were leased by the REA, the library was moved to its present location beside the State Theater.

It now houses about 3,000 volumes, and was made a free library some years ago. Mrs. Holly Hillard is the present librarian.

The will provides a bequest estimated at between $30,000 and $35,000, half of which may be used for the purchase of a building and equipment, and the other half to go into an endowment fund, the income of which is for the purchase of books and payment of expenses.

Large Crowd of Interested Citizens at "Town Meeting" For Rent Control Discussion

More than a score of Warren citizens—both landlords and tenants—offered testimony on rent control at a two-hour public hearing held by Warren Borough Council in the county courthouse last night.

Some 250 interested citizens attended the "town meeting," which was chairmanned by Nick Merenick, chairman of county's rent control committee.

Main purpose of the meeting was to hear testimony on whether a housing shortage exists here which justifies continuance of rent controls, or whether rent controls should be lifted.

The rent control committee is expected to submit its report on the results of the hearing at the May meeting of town council. The solons may then vote to either continue rent controls here, or approve a resolution asking the federal government to de-control the area.

Last night's session was the first time since the subject of rent control has been up for consideration that a fair proportion of tenants offered testimony. One tenant said he knew that he would get notice to move because he "dared" speak up at the meeting.

Virtually all of the tenants agreed that the landlords were entitled to an increase in rents, but they didn't like the prospect of no controls whatsoever.

Landlords stuck to their previous claims that there is no housing shortage here, that lifting of controls will make more desirable rentals available, and that the great majority of the landlords will not take advantage of de-control to gouge tenants.

Here, in part, is what the tenants said:

C. D. Cannon, plant foreman: "I am a renter by choice. I agree property owners should have an increase in rent. My landlord wants my home for his own use, and I'll have to find another place to live by next fall. I have looked around, but I haven't found a single place in which I'd move my family. Since I came here in 1931, I do not know of a single place that has been built for rental purposes. There have been some conversions but I don't consider apartments where two or more families have to share the same bathroom as an adequate place for a family with children. Some conversions have been well done, but a lot of them are ratholes. Most landlords would be fair, but there is a certain percentage who want to get their feet in the trough as soon as possible. The same conditions that have made the need of rent control have given you property owners a 100 per cent capital increase on your properties. I do not believe continuance or relaxation of rent controls is going to change things."

William Schwartz: "I haven't seen a lot of houses for rent. There is a decided housing shortage in Warren, and there are a lot of people living in with their families. If controls are lifted there's going to be 100 per cent rent increases in some cases, and some families are going to be forced out."

Robert Long: "Properties which landlords refuse to rent now for their own reasons cannot be considered in determining a housing shortage. I contacted every real estate office in town and not one listed a single rental. The rent board is allowed to give justifiable increases. If these increases are allowed, what other reason could there be for taking off rent controls?"

William S. Steinkamp: "I don't think rent controls should be taken off. My landlord has received three raises in rent in three years. I think there is a shortage in housing."

But if Bendor and other congress members think they are harried, consider the case of William "Fishbait" Miller, doorkeeper of the house of representatives.

Miller has the job of distributing tickets for the gallery seats and is confronted with these mathematical facts:

There are fewer than 600 seats in the entire gallery. More than 100 are reserved for newsmen. Even then, only one out of every eight reporters gets a seat. There are about 800 newsmen regularly assigned to Washington.

Deducting the press seats, over which Miller has no control, there are less than 500 remaining. Each member of congress is supposed to have a right to one of them—for his wife, his secretary or whoever else he chooses to give it to. There are 435 representatives and 96 senators, a total of 531 congressmen.

On top of that, each cabinet officer, each embassy, each of the nine supreme court justices, and each head of a government agency is supposed to have a gallery seat.

GOLDEN GATE CITY PLANS A RECEPTION

Honolulu, April 17—(P)—General MacArthur leaves the flower-scented hospitality of Hawaii today on his stern mission to challenge in congress the views of the president who fired him over war policy.

His sleek, shiny plane, the Bataan, was scheduled to take off from Honolulu International Airport at 9:30 a. m. (2:30 p. m., EST) enroute to San Francisco and Washington.

The Bataan should arrive at San Francisco International Airport about 8 p. m. (11 p. m. EST). After an overnight rest in San Francisco and brief ceremonies there Wednesday morning, MacArthur will depart for Washington and his appearance Thursday before a joint session of congress.

The five-star general and hero of three wars got a foretaste here yesterday of the applause but none of the acrimony that awaits him in Washington.

Washington, April 17—(P)—President Truman cancelled plans to address the American Society of Newspaper Editors Thursday in order not to interfere with "Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Day." The White House announced Mr. Truman asked the editors to relieve him of his commitment to speak.

Washington, April 17—(P)—Congress today sent Gen. Douglas MacArthur a formal invitation to address it at 12:30 p. m. Thursday. The message, signed by House Speaker Rayburn, was dispatched immediately after the senate by unanimous consent agreed to a joint meeting with the house to hear the general.

For two hours Hawaii's polyglot population lining a 25-mile route cheered MacArthur, his wife, Jean, and their son, Arthur, 13.

The spontaneous outburst of acclaim—at this starting point of the Pacific war which MacArthur fought from beginning to end—presaged pageantry and public demonstrations planned for him in San Francisco, Washington and New York.

But there was no note of the antagonism that has split America and the non-Communist world over his views. He urged that the Allies should bomb Chinese Communist bases in Manchuria and use Chinese Nationalist troops against the Reds to end the Korean war.

MacArthur smiled and waved in response to the shouts of the crowds. He shook a child's hand.

Corry police are in possession of two strips of chrome through which they hope to learn the identity of a motorist who crashed through the Pennsylvania Railroad gates on First avenue at 7:05 p. m. The watchman told officers on duty the car, a light color latemodel vehicle, was traveling south. Officers said the watchman told them the car then continued south on First avenue without stopping.

Pleasant Firemen Are Planning Fund Raising Campaign

The Pleasant Township Volunteer Fire Department has announced its fund raising program for the summer months.

The department will sponsor two carnivals this summer. The first carnival, Carl Ferris Shows, will appear on the Brewery lot for six days starting Monday, May 28th. The second, Eddie's Exposition Shows, will show on the same lot for six days starting Monday, July 9th.

Parade Chairman Frank Valone announces that the traditional Firemen's Parade will be held the evening of July 11th. The prize list should attract the many departments of Northwestern Pennsylvania and Southwestern New York state.

Chief Ebert Clark and his husky water battlers will be hosts on July 10th to the departments of the Warren County Active Volunteer Firemen's Association for one of the many water battles that will be held throughout the county this summer. The Russell Volunteer Fire Department seems to hold an edge over its rivals in this crowd pleasing entertainment, but it is rumored that some secret practice sessions are being held in determination to dethrone the "champions".

Movies were shown by Steve Tritt and a lunch was served by a committee with C. W. Zinger as chairman.

Winner of three Academy Awards, it is an Eagle Lion Films release from J. Arthur Rank.

"The Red Shoes" with almost unprecedented enthusiasm. Here are some of the critical comments: "A new cinema star was born - - - red-haired Moira Shearer danced her way to fame in the British-made film, 'The Red Shoes,'" wrote Kate Cameron in the New York Daily News.

Rose Felswick, in the New York Journal-American wrote, "The Red Shoes" is of and about ballet, and it is enchanting entertainment - - - Moira Shearer, Anton Walbrook and Marius Goring are the principal players, and each does outstanding work. . . . The film's depiction of back-stage life in a ballet company is both novel and arresting. . . . The production numbers are nothing short of exquisite."

Religion Stressed By American Legion In Child Welfare

World tension and war have led The American Legion to stress more strongly than ever the religious aspect of its child welfare program, Commander Willis Lundahl of Chief Cornplanter Post No. 135 revealed here today.

The commander urged parents to make every effort to see that their children have the opportunity to attend church and receive the proper religious training they need. "Religious faith can be a powerful unifying force for the entire nation in the troubled days ahead," Commander Lundahl said.

April has been set aside by The American Legion annually for the promotion of its child welfare program, and this year special attention is being focused on the spiritual needs of children. Theme for the month is "When the Winds Blow", a line taken from the old "Rock-A-Bye-Baby" lullaby. Given a strong religious background, the cradle won't rock hard enough to tumble out "when the winds blow".

The Mid-Century White House Conference on Children and Youth recently called special attention to the effect of the world crisis on children and urged that they be spiritually equipped to meet the problems of the day.

Keeping the home intact is another vital point in this welfare program. This means that, where possible, the Legion tries to keep parents and children together. Most parents do a pretty good job of raising their own children. If one parent is removed from the picture, the one remaining has a double job to do, and this frequently means dependency. If both parents are removed, society then has the much more difficult problem of finding a substitute for the parents, as well as to solve the problem of adequate care for the child.

The American Legion in its child welfare program tries whenever possible to funnel services and help for children through their parents. "There is no substitute for a good parent. This is one reason The American Legion does everything it can to preserve the family home," Commander Lundahl declared. Fully 95 per cent of all help given needy children by this veterans' organization is for the purpose of helping to maintain children in their own homes.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

April 16, 1951.

Medical research serves America. Animal experimentation saves lives, cures disease, prevents epidemics in man and animals.

Pound legislation advocated by the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania is designed:

1. To make available to properly licensed medical schools and laboratories the unwanted and unclaimed dogs and cats in public pounds which are otherwise subjected to useless slaughter in the gas chamber.

2. To protect pets from being stolen and sold for experimental purposes on the black market by making available adequate numbers of unwanted and unclaimed impounded animals.

3. To regulate and supervise properly the treatment and handling of animals used in research by duly authorized government agency.

4. To make it mandatory for institutions requesting from public pounds animals for experimental purposes to apply to the Pennsylvania Department of Health and be duly licensed.

5. To subject all medical schools and laboratories seeking a license to an investigation by the licensing authority as to their ethical standards, their facilities, their humane treatment of animals, the use they propose to make of the animals requested, and whether the public interest will be served by the issuance of such a license. License should be renewed annually on application to the licensing authority and on compliance with the conditions required with respect to the original issue of the license.

6. To provide for an Advisory Committee appointed by the licensing authority consisting of two representatives of licensed institutions, two representatives of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and two representatives of the general public. The Advisory Committee shall advise and assist in making the rules and regulations for carrying on the provisions of such legislation.

7. To provide that no dog or cat shall be released to an institution until it has been impounded for at least ten days and is unclaimed or unredeemed by its owner or anyone desiring it as a pet.

In the event local laws provide for a shorter period for claiming and redeeming of the dogs and cats, they may be released on the expiration of the shorter period. BUT SUCH PERIOD SHALL NOT BE LESS THAN FIVE DAYS AFTER IMPOUNDING.

We must Study life to Protect Life.

Signed,
A Neighbor

N. Y. C. HAVING ANNIVERSARY

The New York Central's 125th anniversary is today. But there will be no speeches, no pageants, no unusual blowing of locomotive whistles. Months ago, the railroad decided this would be "an anniversary without a celebration"—because of the national emergency, and to permit full concentration on preparation.

President Gustav Metzger, commenting on the anniversary said: "The history of the Central to this point might be called the story of a 125-year plan. The ingredients of the plan are simple: opportunity, incentive, work, reward. The results are accomplishments that serve both the public and the individual."

"Only time will tell whether the first 125 years are the hardest. For each generation, no doubt, its own problems seem the most vexing that ever have been. But this much we know: we have the right plan, and if we keep working with it to the best of our ability, we can make it work even better in the future than it has in the past."

The Central was born April 17, 1826, when the New York State Legislature granted a charter to the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad Co. to build a railroad between Albany and Schenectady. This 16-mile pioneer line was the first built in New York State, and is the oldest of approximately 560 predecessor companies combined into today's 11-state, 11,000-mile New York Central System.

Contributions by the New York Central to the progress of transportation have been numerous. Dating from the establishment of the first union station at New York City in 1857, these major "firsts" included:

Installation of track pans from which steam locomotives scooped water without stopping (1869); organization of a railroad apprentice school to develop skilled mechanics in railroad trades (1872); construction of steel cantilever bridge (1883); development of coal car dumper to dump coal into vessels (1885);

Development of high-speed steel rail, leading to installation of first five-inch, 80-pound steel rail (1884), followed by installation of six-inch, 100-pound rail (1892). This made possible construction of the first 100-ton locomotive in 1889 and establishment of the world speed record of 112½ miles an hour by the Empire State Express and its locomotive No. 999 in 1893.

Other innovations included introduction of buffet cars and enclosed vestibules (1890); operation of all-steel passenger car (1906); application of high-power brakes for passenger equipment (1910); installation of automatic train control for safety (1925); experimentation in use of radio for train dispatching (1926); and operation of road diesel-electric passenger and freight locomotives (1928).

Salamanca Press: Talk about diversification of industry, the latest industrial expansions down in Warren, Pa., involve odorless garlic and water towers. A new industry will turn out garlic tablets which are socially acceptable, while a Warren metal firm has started to manufacture water storage tanks and standpipes.

Warren councilmen face a tough problem in deciding whether rents should be de-controlled here. Everyone agrees the landlord needs a break, but many are apprehensive what might happen if all controls are lifted. A moderate "thaw" seems to be the solution, but present federal rent regulations contain no such provision.

With the weather, General MacArthur, rent control and "the trout that got away" there's no dearth of subjects for conversation around Warren these days!

There is always somebody ready to throw cold water on the ideas other people think will set the world on fire.

The 1950-51 citrus fruit crop was much bigger than the 1949-50 crop, most of the increase being in grapefruit. Nice going for a bunch of squirts.

An Appleton, Wis., man fell out of bed and broke his toe when he sneezed. You never can tell where a sneeze is going to catch!

The Road Back

Here And There

Interpretations of world events by John Fischetti, brilliant young cartoonist who has just joined the staff of NEA Service, will begin appearing in the Times-Mirror this week. Editorial cartoons by Fischetti will be featured along with those of Dorman H. Smith, NEA's chief editorial cartoonist. These nationally-known artists will alternate in providing readers with timely, informative portrayals of national and international news. Fischetti is a versatile cartoonist formerly with the New York Herald-Tribune and the Chicago Sun. He has also won wide recognition as an illustrator for magazines and books, with work appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, Colliers, Esquire, Coronet, the New York Times Magazine and other periodicals. Dorman Smith is marking his 30th year as a newspaper cartoonist, and for more than a third of that time has been drawing daily cartoons for the 800 newspapers served by NEA, which includes the Times-Mirror. It will interest readers to learn that last year Smith won the National Headliners' medal for "consistently outstanding editorial cartoons." In 1947, Sigma Delta Chi, national journalist fraternity, presented him with the annual award for editorial cartooning.

This 'N' That: A well known east side couple is negotiating to take over the Henderson Lunch, 707 Pennsylvania avenue, east, as soon as the necessary legal arrangements can be completed by attorneys. . . . Up at the Warren State Hospital arrangements are being completed for the open house to be held May 4th along with an exhibit of pictures of old time personalities and early buildings, which promises to be one of the most interesting events in the history of the institution. . . . A well known resident of the town and long-time reader of the Times-Mirror, calls attention to the fact that Sunday night when her husband was returning home from the business section, about 8:30 o'clock, there was not a single car parked on the Hickory street bridge and not one passed over it while he was on the structure, and that, we are reminded, is a rare sight for persons who travel the bridge regularly. . . . Chuck Tranter, past president of the Warren Junior Chamber of Commerce and director of the state association, along with Ken Carlson, president of the local Jaycees, were in Oil City Saturday evening to attend the charter presentation and dinner dance of the new chapter there, when Tranter presented a president's pin to John Kuhlman, president of the chapter there. . . . Many in Warren will be interested to learn that Harold R. Clark, Oil City, chairman of the Venango County Republican committee, has announced that he will be a candidate for the office of county commissioner on the Republican ticket at the primary July 24. . . . And Mrs. Irene P. Leitze, Venango county treasurer and prominent in Republican politics for more than 20 years has announced she will be a candidate for treasurer of Oil City on the Republican ticket. Her term as county treasurer will expire at the end of this year. . . . Albert K. (Rosey) Rowsell, renowned Pittsburgh Pirate baseball announcer, was interviewed by Johnny Nelson, Jr., of the Bradford Era, on the program of the Smethport Downtown Coaches Association held in the Smethport High School gymnasium Saturday evening. . . . School officials are justified in expecting cooperation from golf players and other residents who frequent that section of Beaty Field set aside for High School athletic activities, when they request that visitors to that popular area refrain from using the cinder track.

Roundup: All major television networks have made general plans to televise General MacArthur's official appearance in New York scheduled for Friday, and it is also understood that the networks are prepared to televise the general's appearance before congress. . . . Area maple producers report one of the most successful seasons in recent years and bulk buyers are expected to arrive in the district within the next few weeks to bid on the "buddy," or poorer quality syrup which will not be marketed directly for home consumption. . . . A big new wing to provide modern operating rooms, 32 additional beds and other facilities, will be built to the Franklin Hospital, with a fund-raising campaign planned to obtain the approximately $450,000 needed to build the new wing, modernize the hospital's kitchen facilities, and make the old central part of the institution fire resistant. . . . First of the spring wild flowers, the hepaticas, made their appearance during the past few days. . . . Motorists continue to make a public dumping ground for garbage in a section of the embankment along the river road between the rear entrance of Oakland cemetery and the Glade bridge, but it is understood that arrests are planned if the practice is continued.

DOESN'T STOP IT

Sugar maple trees will produce maple syrup even if cut off completely above the ground. If placed in a tank of water, the flow of sap will continue just as well as from neighboring trees left undisturbed.

Retailers Should File Price Charts With Erie O. P. S.

Many small retailers may possibly be jeopardizing their competitive positions by failing to file pricing charts with the Office of Price Stabilization, according to a statement by an Erie OPS spokesman.

According to the order, retailers whose annual sales of controlled items are less than $20,000 may elect to remain under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. However, their prices are frozen at the December 19-January 23 level.

This means they are unable to pass along any legitimate increases in the prices of the goods they buy. Many of these merchants are already feeling the squeeze resulting from the freeze of their sale prices.

If these same retailers would file under CRP 7, they could raise prices in accordance with their markups and the increased cost of goods.

W. J. Collins, District Director of the OPS, said that he had the small shops particularly in mind. "Some of these are small, family businesses. Others are operated by widows or disabled persons who depend upon their small annual sales as their sole means of support. We don't want to see any of these folks forced out of business."

Mr. Collins said that the filing isn't as complicated as it might appear. "The Erie OPS will offer as much help as it can. We're anxious to see that the normal flow of business is aided and not penalized," he said.

All communications, including the filing of necessary forms, must be made to the Office of Price Stabilization, 1005 State Street, Erie, Pennsylvania.

Chapter 29

THERE are some experiences in life that, however fantastic, never lose their flavor of reality. There are others that seem unreal—a dream—while they are happening and after. There are still others that, however small in scope, seem to envelop one inexorably, with the impersonal inevitableness of a landslide from which there is no escape, or the inescapable numbing shock of oncoming car headlights in the instant before head-on collision.

Ray and Joe behind their calm, even jesting exteriors, went through much the same series of emotional stages. It began with the same abruptness after they left the lab building and were led to a nearby house and shown to a room with two hospital beds—and calmly told by Nelva and Nancy that the party was over. It was time now to settle down and get ready for the first operation.

"It has to be done right away," Nelva informed them. "There will be long hours of learning to ring bells and flash lights through neural relays—more long hours of getting used to the ability to jump around in five dimensions by thought alone—and all that has to be over by the time this time-stream catches up with the time you first met us in that roadhouse."

And so it began. Opiate and restlessness under opiate that suddenly robs you of those precious last hours by plunging you into deep sleep so that the next instant it is morning and the dread moment is upon you rather than hours away as it was a fleeting thought before, in the quiet of the night.

"Breathe deeply now," And Dr. Scott's face looking down at you—a different face now. That of a man about to do what he lives to do—no longer an old man. A surgeon in the operating room.

"YOU are back in bed," you think. "But what's holding you so still?" You open your eyes and see the straps that imprison your wrists, the dozens of tubes that disappear into your flesh, with wires running out of them to red lights and blue lights and little plastic boxes with buzzers visible inside them. And one of the blue lights winks on, stares at you, then goes out. And you know that somewhere in your mind you did that yourself—by thought!

Eternal, thirsty hours, during which you learn to turn on all the blue lights at once—except two, then one, and finally all of them flash on when you will it. And red lights. And you know there are two kinds of bells. You learn it all. Red lights. Blue lights. High pitched bells. Lower pitched bells. Red lights, blue lights, high notes, low notes. Red-materialize, blue-dematerialize, do-go-ahead-in-time, sol-go-back-in-time.

"That's bad. A red light lit when you rang the low-note buzzers. Try again. It's got to become automatic—and infallible. Relax. Relax."

And at last you open your eyes. The tubes with their wires, and the lights and buzzers are gone. You feel relaxed. Nelva and Nancy are smiling down at you.

Suddenly you remember. You're afraid of what might happen. Then abruptly the fear is gone. There were too many hours of drilling and training. There's nothing to be afraid of—only now the gun is loaded. No blanks. No red lights and blue lights and buzzers.

"Stay put, you," Nelva jeers good naturedly, and you realize you've been switching around in all five dimensions. But how could she do the same?

You sit up in bed as the startling truth hits you, and wonder why it wasn't obvious all the time. "You can do it too!" Ray exclaimed.

"Of course," Nelva murmured. Her eyes softened. "There are four of us now. You and I, and Joe and Nancy."

Suddenly Ray knew how lonesome and alone Nelva had been. He sat up in bed and held out his arms. She crept into them. "The Alchemy of the gods," Ray murmured. "What?" Nelva asked dreamily. "Nothing, darling," Ray said. "It was just a way of saying we've found each other at last."

"Yes," Nelva said, firmly pushing away from him. "And now we must get ready for the big moment. Here everything is fivedimensionally solid. This is really two houses in the same space, two beds in the same space, permanent, so that when you awakened you wouldn't run into trouble before you got your wits about you.

"We have approximately eight hours for you and Joe to learn all the little things you must watch out for in switching around, and to get your sea legs. We have to be back at the roadhouse at the moment we vanished, because our plans begin from there. Also you and Joe have to learn our plan and your part in it."

CRAIG BLANNING, with his features carefully altered so that neither Ray nor Joe would have recognized him, drove swiftly after the car in which Ray Bradley and Joe Ashford were going to their rendezvous with Nelva. The three young ladies and two men in the car with him were all members of the Custodians.

The car radio brought frequent terse reports of the path Ray and Joe were taking, sent by hidden highway police patrol officers.

Thus it was that when Ray and Joe decided—apparently on the spur of the moment—to stop and have a drink at the next roadhouse, Craig was a mere half mile behind, and able to drive in and park, and enter the place at the same time as those two.

He had a brief moment of panic when Ray bumped him at the entrance, but Ray gave no indication of having recognized him. Inside, he and his party took a table near the two, and where they could survey the patrons without seeming to do so.

It was then that he hit on the idea of taking their car away from them. He outlined the plan to one of his men. When Ray rose and went toward the men's room the man followed him, returning with the key to the car and a dazed look. It had been too easy.

"Well," Craig said. "Then this must be where he intends to meet Nelva. Just in case, though, we'll go ahead with it. Take the car, and if this isn't the place we'll manage to talk them into riding with us where they're going."

Burton Rascoe, author and critic, usually has two books under way at the same time.

Chapter 30

AFTER he departed Craig watched Ray and Joe covertly. He followed their gaze when they spied the two girls, and recognized them instantly as Nelva and Nancy.

As Ray and Joe rose from their stools at the bar and crossed the floor leisurely, Craig debated whether to turn the battery of paralysis ray pistols of his group on the two girls at once or wait. He decided to wait until Nelva and Nancy were off guard during the first moments of meeting Ray and Joe.

At the moment Nelva put her hand on Ray's arm Craig decided it was time to act.

"Now," he muttered. As one, he and his three companions rose, drawing out their paralysis pistols, and pointed them at the four in the booth twenty feet away. As Craig pressed the stud of his pistol he saw the four figures become shadowy and vanish.

Instantly he was across the room, taking a small, compact object from his pocket as he ran to the now empty booth. When he reached it he laid the object on one of the seats where the four had been sitting and pulled a pin.

The object was deceptive looking. It was a small bomb, able to follow an induced time stream and explode when it met solidity.

It was his ace in the hole, guaranteed to follow Nelva to whatever time she went and destroy her. He waited for it to vanish on its pursuit. Instead, it remained there.

Craig leaped back in alarm, realizing that at the end of ten seconds its fuse would become activated in preparation detonation, and if it were not gone in time it would blow up right there.

His thoughts were struggling with the problem even as he tried to escape the blast. Why hadn't the bomb followed the four? How had they all vanished without benefit of time travel equipment?

The blast caught him and flung him backward into people/seated at tables. He lost consciousness. When he came to, the sound of sirens dying down outside was the first thing he became aware of.

He lay quietly, exploring himself in search of injury. When he finally moved a little, tentatively, he decided he hadn't been hurt—probably just knocked out by the explosion or by hitting a table.

He went over to the shambles that had been the booth. There was little left. At his back he heard the screams of the injured. The police joined him quickly.

"Look," Craig said urgently to the officer in charge, showing him his badge of authority in his billfold. "Keep everyone away from this spot where the explosion occurred, and get me back to town as quickly as possible. I've got to report to Vargian headquarters at once."

The badge brought immediate action.

JUST before they entered the city limits he managed to get through to Vargian headquarters and tell them briefly the outcome of their attempt.

Fifteen minutes later he was at the foot of the table around which the Vargians sat, gravely listening and questioning him.

You say the tracer bomb just stayed there?" one of them asked. "That's correct," Craig said.

"There can be only one explanation," another said slowly. "It also accounts for our not being able to locate Nelva during all the time we've searched for her. She's discovered some field of reality we haven't as yet reached with our own devices."

Suddenly every voice in the room stilled. A panel on the wall had come to life. On it was the face that looked down on the people all over the city from the hundreds of monitored spycreens, the face of Vargia, the Queen. Only in this screen it was not still, but alive.

As one man everyone present in the room stood and bowed, remaining that way. Vargia looked out at them over the two way television, her face a mixture of temperaments, as her nature had always been since birth.

"So you ALMOST caught her," her voice said quietly. She noted with apparent satisfaction the trembling of shoulders of these leaders, and of Craig, Craig, she knew as a Vargian noble who, because he was second born, had been denied the extra-temporal eye so that he, like her sisters could never assume the leadership of his line.

"I've been listening to your discussions," Vargia went on finally. "Why didn't you try to kill Nelva before she had a chance to steal those two from 1950 away from you? The best she could have hoped for then would have been escape—to try again to reach her object of affection. Now there's nothing—except perhaps a fair time track into a realm of physics we know nothing about."

"But we'll have other chances," Craig said eagerly. "With him she has what she needs to carry out her plans. We can get her where she appears."

"Nonsense," Vargia said. "His plans don't depend on a stupor savage from half a century ago. It's obvious to me that she's fallen in love with him. He was the bait you'll ever have to catch h— and she got away with him. Bah!"

"I have incurred your displeasure," Craig said woefully. "You have," Vargia said coldly. "The Vargians in the room raise their eyes expectantly, as watched in fascination as they saw Craig draw out his ray tu and change the adjustment 'lethal'."

His face was pale as he raised the tube to his forehead. His fin whitened on the fire stud.

But suddenly one of the Vargians jumped toward him excitedly. At the same instant Craig's ray tube flew from his grasp; it flew through the air the Vargian, and Ray Brad materialized beside Craig, rearing toward him, to grasp his a and draw him across into i-time stream.

The Vargian fumbled hastily to reset the ray intensity to freezing strength, then turned it to R strength, his muscles.

Ray tried to take his fin from the switch in his pocket he could vanish. He could sweat stood out on his forehead from the effort.

The Vargian, his eyes flash with excitement, held the paralysis ray on him steadily.

Officially concluding its 1950-51 season, the Woman's Club held its annual luncheon and business session in the clubhouse Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Wallace F. Cowden was reelected to serve as president in the coming year.

Tables for the luncheon, arranged by Mrs. J. B. Candy and Mrs. J. F. Trevenen, were most attractively done in pastel shades. Centering each was a small hatbox holding spring flowers, each box a different color and contrasting satin bows topping lids a-tilt. Tall white candles flanked each hatbox.

During the serving, a trio of high school girls played familiar airs. The young musicians were Geraldine Magill, Kay Miller and Karen Kinney.

Mrs. E. P. Wroth voiced the invocation which prefaced the luncheon and Mrs. Cowden conducted the business meeting which followed.

A hearty welcome was extended to past presidents, Miss Ella M. Tybout, Mrs. W. F. Clinger, Mrs. M. A. Connelly, Mrs. Gerald Wright and Mrs. B. W. Knapp, all remembered with lovely corsages.

In the absence of the historian, Mrs. W. E. Lutz, who was reported ill, Mrs. Wright gave the historian's summary of the year and members stood a moment in silent tribute to three who have died since the last annual meeting, Mrs. Wilson Waters, Miss Grace Campbell and Mrs. H. W. Conarro, Sr.

Other reports included those of the secretary, Mrs. Cleveland; treasurer, Mrs. Dawson; house committee, Mrs. Kinkead; Art Department, Mrs. Allison D. Expressing her appreciation for the wholehearted cooperation given in her year as president, Mrs. Cowden commented particularly on the efforts of those who handle kitchen and dining room assignments and the untiring efforts of the club secretary, Mrs. Alda Chapel.

After Mrs. H. R. Robertson had read the nominating committee's report and the slate had been unanimously elected, Mrs. Cowden spoke of plans for the coming season. She explained reasons for omitting the annual bazaar next fall and called on Mrs. B. H.

Mathis to explain plans for a Better Garment Sale which will be a fund-raising project. Mrs. Beardsley spoke of the annual May Day Breakfast, an event eagerly looked forward to by several hundred club members and friends each spring.

Many Items Before Legion Auxiliary At Its Regular Semi-Monthly Session

A number of timely items were brought to the attention of the American Legion Auxiliary, Dinsmoor-Schwing Unit, when the semi-monthly meeting was held at the Legion Home.

April having been designated as Child Welfare Month, a letter was read from the national chaplain of the American Legion, David Lefkowitz, urging that moral rearmament and spiritual reinforcement be used in the child welfare program, stating:

We of the Legion have as our motto, 'For God and Country'. If we make certain that our children have the first, the second will more readily be assured. Let us give them a security that is beyond gunfire and atomic explosions—the sound knowledge and the unshakable faith implied in these words of old: 'Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and all thy soul and with all thy might. And thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself'. We can give our children no finer heritage than this."

A check of $48.38, the balance of the funds of the disbanded Legion Drum Corps, was received from the Legion to be used for aid to children of needy veterans.

It was reported that 7,500 poppies have been ordered for Poppy Day. These flowers are being made by hospitalized veterans and proceeds of the sale will be used for child welfare and rehabilitation work.

Mrs. Clara Driscoll, chairman of the Pan-American study program, read a very interesting and educational paper on Uruguay, the country assigned for study this year.

THE MILLER GRINDS THE CORN OUR AMERICAN WAY

When Old Glory rises to greet the new day
We will try to live Our American Way
Tho the bugle's sounding the call to prepare,
We'll still strive to share Our American Way
The Goddess of Freedom reaches the call,
From ocean to ocean she beckons to all.
When the strife is over and peace reigns again
We shall build anew Our American Way
We shall build anew Our American Way

Wed In Greek Catholic Rite

—Thomas Studio

St. Michael's Greek Rite Catholic church in Sheffield was the scene at 2 p. m. Saturday of a beautiful double ring ceremony which united in marriage Mary Ann Donick and Larue I. Croman. The vows were read by the Rev. Silas Tretlak in the presence of many relatives and friends of the couple, with white gladioli used as the altar background.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Donick, Deerlick Run road, was graduated from Sheffield High in 1943 and is employed by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways at Starbuck.

Mr. Croman, son of Mrs. Odessa Croman, Williamsport, and Raymond-Croman, Ithaca, N. Y., was graduated from Muncy Creek High School and Western Maryland College. He is superintendent of the Air Reduction Sales Company, Warren.

The bride was gowned in white frosted organza, with fingertip veil attached to a Juliet cap of lace. Her gown was styled with high, round neckline finished with Peter Pan collar, long, tapering sleeves, and full skirt ending in a train. Her prayer book was topped with a white orchid and showered with ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Arthur Mehler, Ridgway, who served her niece as matron of honor, wore a ballerina-length gown of white organza over blue underskirt and carried an old fashioned bouquet of mixed flowers with blue ties.

The best man was Wayne N. Marion, Columbus, O., and ushers were Paul Donick, the bride's brother, and Francis Logan, Warren.

Mothers of the principals wore red rose corsages with gray ensembles.

From three until five, a reception was held for 100 guests at The Lumberlost, Joan Zastawny.

Pirates Edge Reds, 4-3, in First Game of Baseball Campaign

By The Associated Press
King for a day, anyway. That's Branch Rickey's National League pace-setting Pittsburgh Pirates.

Getting a jump on the rest of the National League clubs, which were slated to open warfare today, Pittsburgh spoiled Cincinnati's sneak preview yesterday by routing the Reds, 4-3, before 30,441 disappointed and blanketed fans. Near-freezing temperature and snow flurries marred the Reds' inaugural.

That left the Pirates all alone in the victory column as rain washed out the other half of the special ceremonial opening at Washington. The Senators and defending champion New York Yankees were to have ushered in the American League season.

Weather permitting, all of 16 clubs should get under way today with an estimated 242,000 customers expected to attend the eight openers. That includes the Senators-Athletics scheduled night game in Philadelphia, first night opener in a majority of the cities. Pittsburgh's triumph was doubly sweet as it came at the expense of Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell, one of the National League's better hurlers. Blackie was pummeled for seven hits and all of the Pirates' runs before bowing out for a pinch hitter after three innings.

Rickey must have swelled noticeably at the impressive debut, both at bat and in the field, made by George (Catfish) Metkovich. The 29-year-old outfielder, Rickey's personal $10,000 draft pick from Oakland last fall, had quite a day for himself.

The rookie, who previously had fumbled in hitches with the Red Sox, Braves and White Sox, was the big gun in the Pirates' 12-hit attack on Blackwell and three relievers. He cracked a double and two singles and scored a run.

Metkovich ignited the winning three-run uprising against Blackwell in the third inning with a sharp single to right. He sparked in the field handling five putouts flawlessly. He took an extra base hit away from Joe Adcock, sprawling into the overflow crowd in centerfield to make a splendid catch of a towering drive in the fourth.

In the next inning, the Catfish cut down Garry Hatcher at the plate with a fine throw after fielding Virg Stallcup's single. That eventually turned out to be a game-saving play.

Washington's washout paved the way for an unprecedented doubleheader next Friday. Nobody can remember such a turn of events this early in the season. Separate admissions will be charged. President Truman will attend the first game, set for 2:00 p.m. E.S.T. The other game will be played at 8:30 p.m.

BRIDGES SPANS GAP—Rocky Bridges, a real Dodger, threatens to chase Billy Cox and Bobby Morgan off third base and the other side out of the park. As Montreal's shortstop, he made the International League's All-Star team the past two summers. (NEA)

Members of the championship squad were: P. Peterson, G. Bradley, A. Siveda, E. Danuski and F. Gromic.

Top Avgs. Posted By Salamon, Lyle

John Salamon, of the Warren Water team, and J. Lyle, of the A and P Store squad, shared top honors for the best average in the Ex-Servicemen's Tenpin League, which holds its annual banquet tonight at 6:30 o'clock at the Cornplanter Rod and Gun Club.

Stanky thrice led the National League on base-on-balls.

He made Alvin Dark a dependable shortstop, and with the combination, the New York Nationals practically tied for the leadership in double plays last trip.

"Little guys" who aren't great have been—and are—vital cogs in championship clubs.

They get on base, steal the important one, pull the unexpected at bat and in the field. They don't hit straight away, but "do something"—hit to the opposite field, squeeze, etc.

Jerry Coleman took charge of the Yankee infield as a freshman.

It is young Coleman, the ball in one hand and dirt in the other, who talks to the pitcher at the first sign of trouble.

He is all out right down to a headlong dive for a ball hit to either side of him.

With the remarkable Phil Rizzuto, he gives the world champions matchless execution of the double killing.

A WRIST hitter who appears none too dangerous, he ups with men in scoring position, whacks the ball a fair country piece on occasion.

Johnny Pesky of the Red Sox has tremendous value as a hitter, follows the general pattern in the infield. A player of his stature being in the dugout further stresses how extraordinary is the Sox personnel.

Mike Goliath of the Phillies and Roy Hartsfield of the Braves accomplish a lot by just hustling.

General Manager Billy Evans and others contend that Buddy Rosar is as fine a receiver as there is in the game, but for some strange reason the Red Sox veteran doesn't care to catch. . . . A new stance may give Joe Collins the sustained power he requires to play first base for the Yankees. . . . Bobby Thomson is the key man with the Giants. . . . If the center fielder gets off well at the plate, watch out. . . . Slat's Marion inherited the best first-class player in the land in Stanley Musial, the best second-division team in the National League in the Cardinals, and a headache like crazy from Eddie Dyer.

Spiders of England and Wales are said to eat 22 trillion insects a year. This is a harvest weighing more than the human population.

A cue-bid (one that shows control, rather than a real suit) often helps the partnership reach the best contract. However, it is important not to make such a bid if it helps the enemy more than your side.
In today's hand, for example, East was technically correct in bidding four spades. He wanted to reach a contract of at least five clubs, and he could honestly show control of the spade suit on the way to that contract. Psychologi-

South, East and West had to be satisfied with the 100 points they could get by doubling five spades. It was no longer possible for them to bid six clubs with any serious expectation of making that contract.
There would be a different story to tell if East simply bid four clubs instead of making the tactically unsound cue-bid of four spades. South would proceed on to four spades, and East could then go to five clubs. It would seem that he

Driver Education Instructor Will Attend Conference

Dr. Carl Whipple, superintendent of Warren borough schools, announces today that James E. Springer, instructor of driver education in Warren High School, will attend the second annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Highway Safety Educators at the Community Inn in Hershey this Friday and Saturday.

The Association has over 350 members who are teachers of safety in Pennsylvania schools and colleges.

Stressing driver education, the conference will give the teachers opportunity of hearing nationally-recognized experts talk on new techniques and new teaching aids and materials. College representatives and teachers will have separate meetings during the conference to discuss their special problems.

Featured speakers at the conference will include Dr. Herbert J. Stack of the Center for Safety Education of New York University; Paul H. Blaisdell, executive director of the National Committee for Traffic Safety, from Chicago; Amos Neyhart, administrative head of the Institute of Public Safety of Pennsylvania State College, and Ivan J. Stehman, chief of the Division of Highway Safety Education, Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg.

The Driver Education and Highway Safety Program has been a part of the curriculum in Warren schools for the past three years.

JUVENILE COURT

At yesterday's session of juvenile court, Judge Allison D. Wade sent two local youngsters to the Pennsylvania Junior Republic at Grove City for an indefinite term on charges of burglary. The boys had appeared before Judge Wade many months ago on similar charges. Nine other boys, ranging in age from 11 to 15 years, were placed on probation for one year, to report to Sheriff L. E. Linder periodically. They all faced charges of larceny or burglary.

When Canada, then New France, took its first census in 1666 the country had 3,215 inhabitants.

FOREST CO. TO HAVE PLOW DEMONSTRATION

A tractor plow adjustment demonstration will take place on the farm of Lloyd Allio and Son in Red Brush Community of Forest county on Thursday, at 1:30 p. m. Roger Groul, agricultural extension engineer of Meadville, will be the demonstrator.

No farm operation gives as much satisfaction as a good job of plowing, says County Farm Agent Russell M. Smith. Since plowing requires a considerable expenditure of time and power, it is desirable that the plow be adjusted to do the best possible job under the existing conditions.

Sixth Member of Phalanx Fraternity Enlists in Service

Announcement at last night's meeting of the Phalanx Fraternity that Don Anderson had enlisted in the service brings the number to six members the local club has given. The others are Krestan and Ronald Andersen, William Lord, Gordon Odmark, and John Johnson.

In dealing with this service situation the club is determined to keep alive its active program. Members agreed unanimously to accept the proposal of the state young adult commission that "when the going becomes tough is not the time to quit and fold-up but rather to work harder to meet the needs."

To keep in closer contact with Phalanx members in the service the suggestion was made that a mimeographed letter be written to them each month telling the functions of the club and any personal items of interest. Jerry Huber, tribune of the fraternity, volunteered to take over the project.

Fran Masterson, pro-primus, was appointed to stage another membership drive to bring new blood into the club and strengthen its members.

At the close of the season, Allen Anderson, primus, gave a report of the Young Adult Council meeting he attended in Harrisburg last Saturday and explained the part the local organization can play in the centennial celebration in Cleveland. The group agreed to pay a third of the expense of a delegate if the association would provide a third and the individual the remaining amount.

Large Crowd of Interested Citizens have a lot of money tied up in real estate and let the tenant do what he pleases to our property."

Dominic Rizzo: "We're willing to go back to 1940 rents providing the union men are willing to go back to 1940 wages. With these high prices, we're getting an injustice. There are plenty of houses to rent."

Mike Gotto: "People in 1940 who were making $25 to $35 a week are now making $50 to $60. The cost of coal has doubled, painting has doubled, lumber is more than double, and taxes are up. I don't think landlords will jump the gun and raise the rents too much."

George Klinefelter, councilman: "The census shows there are less people in Warren in 1950 than in 1940. A survey shows 119 houses have been built in Warren since 1940. Other units have been remodeled to make up to 200 new homes. 'I can't see how anyone can claim there is a housing shortage. There's not a soul living in a garage. There's not a soul living in a trailer house. I can show you two or three houses and two or three apartments for rent right now."

Lloyd S. Cleveland: "I have appraised more than 300 houses for the Veterans Administration in Warren. A very great injustice and inequity has been done the veterans. After the war, they established their families and they had to rent the new houses under control, and had to pay high rents. There are 3000 dwelling units in Warren, and many of them are occupied by single persons."

Ann Chido: "A lot of people in Warren are paying side money. Rent is not too high, and few landlords will take advantage of the tenants if controls are lifted. There are places to rent, but you can't ask a landlord to rent five or six rooms for $20."

Bill Simonson: "All these conditions have been brought about because of rent control. There is only one way under law that the landlords can get a break and that is to remove controls. After nine years under this situation, it's time to change it."

William Howe: "By all means, rent control should be lifted. I don't think there's a housing shortage."

Eli Gordon: "How many people here tonight are looking for a place to live?" (Three persons said they were looking for homes. One woman said the place in which she was now living had very damp walls and the landlord refused to do anything to correct the situation.)

George Kehm: "How can so many people offer their homes for sale? Where are they going? I know why they want to sell. It's because of high prices and property owners just can't get enough rent. Why not set up a committee in Warren and let's have a definite understanding between the landlords and tenants about rent increases."

Mrs. H. J. Long: "There is no housing shortage in Warren. One woman called me about a house. She said she had three places to go. Tenants are price hunting today, but there's no shortage."

Golden Gate City Plans a Reception

He chatted with an ex-soldier who had fought with him on Bataan.

He received an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University of Hawaii in an amphitheater jammed with 5,000 people. He heard the university president acclaim him "one of the greatest Americans of all times."

He stopped at Punchbowl, a national cemetery in the extinct crater of a volcano overlooking Honolulu and Pearl Harbor. He placed a wreath of orchids at the base of a flagpole in honor of 13,000 World War II dead buried there.

Some of the neat white rows of crosses marked the last resting place of men who perished in the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

After standing rigidly at salute for a minute, MacArthur turned to correspondents, pointed at row on row of the crosses and said "I know the glory of their death."

In places, Bradley's viewpoint on the situation was the same as MacArthur's. He disagreed on what to do about it.

Bradley made it plain that "I have no intention of entering the foreign policy field or even urging a particular policy in the conduct of foreign affairs. Conduct of foreign affairs is a civilian responsibility. . . ."
